The Understanding Student Experiences of Higher Education series publishes theoretically robust and empirically rigorous studies of students' experiences, covering a broad range of elements such as student life, engagement in degree courses and extracurricular activities, experiences of feedback and assessment, student representation and other student organisations, diversity and inclusion, and students' wider lives. It offers a richer understanding of the different meanings of being a student in higher education in the 21st century. The books in the series are united by the belief that it is not possible to understand contemporary students' experiences without understanding the diverse range of people, contexts, and institutions that come together to form these experiences.
