09:00 - 09:15	SRHE welcome &amp; opening remarks Dr Clare Loughlin-Chow (SRHE CEO) and Prof Pauline Kneale (SRHE Chair)
09:15 - 10:00	Plenary: Creating Effective Connections between Higher Education Research and Educational Policy and Practice Plenary speaker: Prof Dame Nicola Dandridge  Higher education research and educational policy and practice often have different objectives. This is perhaps inevitable as a reflection of institutional autonomy and academic freedom, but it does also mean that the research ends up having little or no impact on policy development. Nicola will draw on her experience of working at both national policy level and within the higher education sector, to consider where the division is inevitable and necessary, and where it is unhelpful, and for the latter what we could or should do about it.

This plenary will consider theoretical frameworks for understanding tertiary system models, how they relate to evidence on practice at different levels of geography and governance, and the potential lessons from this for future governments in England and beyond. The plenary will address this through discussion of four key areas of interest that will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Compare theories for understanding models of tertiary education with practice across the UK nations.</li> <li>• Review major trends impacting on post-secondary education, including the policy shift towards tertiary eco-systems, and putting forth propositions on governance, design, delivery and funding.</li> <li>• Explore the changing landscape for tertiary education in England and the different approaches that may be adopted by current and future governments.</li> <li>• Explore existing funding and regulation issues for FE and HE – and why policymakers might prioritise tertiary reform in England?</li> </ul>

Poster Session

Courtyard Restaurant

Poster presenters are invited to be available by their posters for a live discussion with conference attendees. This is a chance to showcase your research, receive feedback and connect with colleagues.

There will be two prizes for poster presenters; all posters will be judged by members of the SRHE Committee and by conference delegates. The Delegate Pack will include the voting form and guiding instruction. Voting will open on Wednesday 6 December and end after lunch break on the following day.

Poster prize winners will be announced at 18:30 on Thursday 7 December – good luck to all involved.

18:30 - 19:30

Welcome Drinks Reception

Courtyard Bar

The Drinks Reception is open to all delegates.

This will be an excellent opportunity to network and mingle with exhibitors, meet old friends and colleagues, and to make new ones.

15:00 - 16:00	Panel Session: Landscapes of Learning for Unknown Futures: Prospects for Space in Higher Education Conference Room 1a with Prof Sam Elkington and Dr Jill Dickinson. This presentation unpacks the principal findings that emerged from an SRHE-hosted Symposia Series that brought together sector stakeholders to consider new thinking in decision-making, policy, and practice and reflect on the promise of future landscapes of learning in HE through the prism of three thematic lenses: networks, assemblages, and flexibilities. Each of these lenses formed the conceptual focus for a symposium event with the aim of providing designated space and scope for interrogating a range of theoretical and applied interpretations and perspectives, and generating collaborative, reflexive discussions, and debate. The presentation	Panel Discussion: Higher Education Policy Conference Room 1b Chaired by Prof Colin McCaig (co-convenor of the HEP network). The session will be an open forum for discussion on UK HE policy in the medium term, led by Colin McCaig, and feature a stimulus talk by Smita Jamdar who will consider ways in which the HE sector might change/develop following the upcoming general election.	Panel Session: Use and Misuse of Generative Artificial Intelligence Large Language Models in Student Undergraduate and Postgraduate Research Conference Room 1c Christine O’Dea Speakers: Professor Tony Wall, Dr Christine O’Dea, Dr Ruth Stoker, and Dr Mike O’Dea. This session will provide an opportunity for educators to explore possible opportunities in using GenAI tools to support students to conduct academic research in an ethical manner, share good practices and make recommendations for university key stakeholders and policy makers. draws together key learning and emergent themes to emphasise a more holistic understanding of the synergies and possibilities for learning spaces and the networks, assemblages, and flexibilities that characterise them according to the level of complexity and depth that they exhibit and the neoteric topologies of connection, social meaning, and practice that they promote.

Conference Room 1a

Postgraduate Issues Network Session
Conference Room 1b

Please join us for this session if you would like to find out more about the Digital University network. One of the network convenors, Katy Jordan, will be present to informally discuss the network, introducing its work to-date and plans for the future. Everyone is welcome to attend and we look forward to discussing the next steps with you and hearing your thoughts about topics and events you would like to see within the network moving forward.

Postgraduate Issues Network: a chance to raise issues of interest with the Convenors

The Postgraduate Issues Network was established in 1995 to help interested parties find out about new developments in the field of postgraduate education and to interpret these for their own use and benefit, by means of seminar and workshop events, variously online or face-to-face. This growing network has many members (researchers, supervisors and research supporters of many kinds) including a number from around the globe, by virtue of participating in events.

The network offers its members more than a series of meetings: it aims to be a true network of mutual support in which ideas, concerns, materials and help are shared in a collaborative, collegial way, amongst all interested parties.
